⚠ WARNING Read all safety information and operating instructions contained in this manual carefully before using the accessory with the appliance. Save these instructions for reference.

- Exercise extreme caution when removing the drip pan and accessory. Contents will be hot after cooking. Do not set directly on countertop or other surfaces which may be adversely impacted by high temperatures.
- To prevent burns or injury, always use proper protection, such as hot pad or oven mitts when removing or handling items from the smoking chamber.
- Drip pan and beer can accessory may be hot when preheated. Use extreme caution when loading food onto racks and when inserting, removing, or adjusting accessory components.
- Extreme caution must be used when moving the drip pan with accessory after cooking. Hot liquids may be present in the pan and in the can after cooking. Use appropriate protection and exercise care to avoid splashing or otherwise spilling hot liquids from the drip pan.

Instructions:

1. Place chicken rack directly into the drip pan, with or without a foil drip pan liner.
2. Open a beer can and remove approximately half of the liquid. Failure to do so may increase the risk of hot liquids spilling or slashing out of the drip pan.
3. Place the can in the center of the rack so it is stabilized by the 4 fingers.
4. With the deep end of the pan facing you, put the chicken over the can with the breast side facing you, and slide it down over the can until it feels well balanced.
5. You are now ready to insert the drip pan with the chicken into the smoker.
 - Recommended rack position is to place the drip tray in the lowest normal rack position of the smoker.
